- You've heard the saying that the whole is greater than the sum of its Parts? The For Our Kids network is proof that individual actions add up to a movement creating real change. This presentation will highlight some key campaigns by local, parent-led climate action groups, and then look at how each of these collective actions depends upon and amplifies the power of individual actions.

Michelle Dias, Educator for Waste and Recycling Services, City of Calgary. Talking Trash with the City of Calgary

- Join the growing movement towards a circular economy! Not sure what that means? You might already be doing it by sharing, reusing and simply rethinking how you can reduce your waste and use resources more wisely. Come learn about a circular economy and be inspired by how local Calgarians and municipalities across Canada are already finding everyday ways to retain and recover as much value as possible from our resources.

Grace Wark, Green Workplace Coordinator Green Calgary. Bringing It Home

- Looking for more ways to bring sustainability into your home? For more than 40 years, Green Calgary has been working to connect Calgarians with local environmental education and green actions they can take—quite literally—in their own backyard. From reducing household waste, to supporting a healthy watershed to re-thinking energy use, there are many ways to shrink your environmental footprint and live a greener life. Join us in making Calgary a more vibrant and sustainable city through simple everyday action.
